Bol Ingersoll lectures in Portland August 10th. He will show up here if the coin inducement is sufficient.

Glue is now used in the manufacture of cheap grades of ice cream. That is ice cream "with a stick in it," as it were.
The stockholders of the Garibaldi Packing Co. will meet at "Longshoremen's hall" at 10 o'clock on the morning of August 2.

The English flag was flying from the British Consulate yesterday; Consul G. E. Stanley of San Francisco being in the city.
Holders of mortgages should have discharges, renewals, etc., recorded and entered up before the 1st prox, and avoid further annoyance.

"A grand performance" is what all the leading Eastern newspapers say of Charlotte Thompson's "Jane Eyre." Reserved seats at New York Novelty store.

The justice court in Astoria precinct was overrun with business yesterday, some of which, owing to the gravity of the charges preferred, was laid over until today.
Grage Bros. sustained a severe loss yesterday in the running away of their team at Uniontown, resulting in the serious injury of one of the horses and the breaking of the truck.

Coasting skippers state that whales are so numerous it is difficult for vessels to keep out of their way. A report of a gun or any other sudden noise will scare them off very quickly.
In the police court, yesterday, fifteen delinquents made the customary address and were individually assessed in various sums, the proceeds of the hour enriching the city treasury to the extent of $400.

Langdon, Stickles & Co., have established a branch of the American Mercantile and Collection Association. Their office is in the White House, room No. 1, and any business intrusted to them will receive prompt and personal attention.
The New Northwest publishes a list of hamper precincts on the woman suffrage vote. Clifton, in this county, leads the list, where 98 per cent. of the voters were recorded in favor of the amendment. Eight Clatsop county precincts gave the amendment a majority.

Since the 1st of last April there have been shipped from Astoria 127,297 cases of salmon. Of this amount, 4,498 cases went on board the San Francisco steamers, 67,885 went on the Woodlark, Itala, Chas. Cotesworth and Essex; 44,576 on the Aberdeen and Johnston; 1,000 to London, and 22,041 overland, via Northern Pacific Railroad. The city of Delhi, now loading, will take in the neighborhood of 60,000 cases.

A CARD.

ASTORIA, Ogn., July 28, 1884.
Miss Charlotte Thompson,
RESPECTED MADAM—We, the undersigned citizens of Astoria, learning of your intended visit, and being grateful thereby, your recognized fame having preceded you, earnestly solicit as a favor, that in addition to the great enjoyment anticipated in witnessing your personation of Jane Eyre, you will on the second evening render your famous impersonation of Nell Gwynne. Awaiting your reply to the above request, we remain,
Yours respectfully,
D. A. F. Halloran,
W. E. Dement,
C. H. Cooper,
D. Morgan, Jr.,
H. C. Thompson,
O. Leineweber,
J. W. Case,
J. G. Hustler,
A. J. Megler,
And many others.

Squemoqua—Squemoqua.

It is again suggested here and there that the matter of changing the names of Astoria's streets be agitated. The most prominent idea is to do away with the words Chenamus and Squemoqua, and one or two other names. To call the streets running east and west, First, Second, Third, etc., is thought by many to be in the direct line of progression. Others argue that as our records of property sales are largely based upon these words, that any change would create confusion in the matter of legal record. As a matter of fact, if the change is ever made it should be made now, as the increase in the size of the city makes any change more and more objectionable as the years go by. The word Squemoqua has an unclean sound, that could easily be replaced by a word of more euphonious appearance.

Pianos To Rent.

THE PROPOSED NEW COURT HOUSE.

ASTORIA, July 28, 1884.
ED. ASTORIAN.—It is said the county commissioners will meet to consider the advisability of building a new court house. When they meet let them bear in mind the fact that tax-payers of this county are paying a larger percentage as taxes than is paid by any other community in this state. Let them remember also that the county, the city and the school district are all loaded for debts incurred. The county undoubtedly needs a court house, because the present building of that name is rotten and unsafe.
A wooden structure can be put up, suitable for all uses for the next ten years, at a cost of $7,500, to which we will add ten years' interest at the rate of 8 per cent., and we have a total of $13,500. The lower floor to be used as a court-room and the upper floor for sheriff and clerks' offices. The interest for the same length of time on a $40,000 brick building will amount to $32,000. Thus by comparison we see that in ten years' time we shall be able to tear down, burn or give away our wooden building and still have left the sum of $19,500, the difference between the cost of and interest upon the wooden building and the interest upon the cost of the brick. The wooden building can be paid for in county orders at par, whereas the brick will necessitate the issue of bonds. Ten years' time is apt to change our ideas of what a court house should be built, and may be the same length of time will show it to the county's advantage to dispose of its present site and purchase other grounds. Under the circumstances let the new court house be cheap and temporary. County roads come ahead of gaudy court houses in the procession. This headlong rush of county and city into debt is causing people to evade the payment of taxes, and unless some decided steps are soon taken in the direction of economy in our community, capital and business will be driven from our midst. The moral of which is wear no fine clothes unless you can pay for them.

TAXPAYER.

IT IS SAID.

That another circus—Denby's—is heading this way.

That nothing but h-l-u-d will appease wounded honor.

That a road to Ft. Clatsop will be built—sometime.

That Astoria real estate is a good buy at present figures.

That Dr. Watt will shortly whisper an address to Astorians.

That the N. P. R. R. folks are going to make "a new deal" after the 1st.

That satisfaction is free but it costs money to run a church, all the same.

That the amount of indebtedness on the city tax list foots up "right smart."

That a surveying party is looking up a railroad location between here and Forest Grove.

That the new life station at the mouth of the Columbia will be built near Ft. Stevens.

That there is more money in circulation in Astoria today than in any other town of its size on the coast.

That the top of the bottom of the river at Walker's Island won't let a vessel swing out of their feet pass. The Kirkwood must be lighted.

ACROSS THE CONTINENT.

Oregon stocks are booming in Wall street.

Cholera sufferers are being prayed for in Paris.

Ben Butler says he is going to run for president.

New York is sending back "assisted" emigrants.

England will admit the importation of Wyoming cattle.

The French invading force has been checked in Madagascar.

Japanese visitors in New York are making fun of our "navy."

St. John will accept the Prohibition presidential nomination in September.

Capt. Payne and his filibusters have been notified to leave the Indian territory or take the consequences.

The Russian czar and the Austrian and German emperors are going to have a pow-wow in Poland next week.

The New York Independents are going to start Carl Schurz campaigning and are calling for coin to pay him.

Scarcely Known Her.

Mr. Pinpoint, who has accompanied the family of his affianced, stands on the beach contemplating her as she emerges from the billows.

"Great heavens, Mary! is that you? You never reminded me so much of sugar as you do now."

"Because I look sweeter than ever?" she asked, archly.

"No; because one-half of you appears to have been dissolved in the water."

STATE AND TERRITORIAL NEWS.

Thos. Haskell, aged 18, of Goldendale, W. T., killed himself last Saturday because he couldn't go to the circus.

Thomas Worman has sold a half interest in his sheep house, and overgrown grounds at Cedar River, to John and Henry Clark of Oysterfield.

The first record of an editor taking a wedding trip is reported from Dallas, one of the editors of the Heater getting married and going to Yachima for his health and pleasure.

The annual report is now current that an opposition line of steamers will be running between the Columbia river and San Francisco within sixty days. Cabin passage is to be $10; freight rate, $2 per ton.

Lieut. Frederick Schwatka, of Arctic fame, has resigned from the army, and his resignation has been accepted. It is generally understood that he intends entering some special duty under a foreign power.

A wheat field extending five miles long by two wide, was struck by lightning on Saturday night, and heavy crops, covering the whole country near Bolles Junction, Walla Walla county, were consumed by fire.

The number of vessels entered and cleared in Puget Sound custom district for the fiscal year ending June 30: Foreign, 1,410; coastwise, 345; total, 1,755. Tonnage, 666,533. Collections, $57,235.45. The cost of collection was $2,094.

R. Hoggan, of Sandy, says the Oregon City Courier, out of one cedar tree, seven feet in diameter, built a one story frame house, including the shingles on the roof, dimensions 21x16, out of 4,000 shingles, made 4,000 shingles, and has wood enough left for 5,000 more shingles.

There is a scarcity this year of yellow jackets and hornets in Western Washington, which fact is attributed to the severe weather during the past winter. Civil engineers do not regret their absence, as they have during previous summers been greatly annoyed by them.

The Polk County Heater thinks that the fruit raisers of Oregon can save to themselves and the state thousands of dollars by destroying the worm webs on the fruit trees without further delay. If this work is neglected they will find their trees a living mass of worms next spring, destroying foliage and fruit to a great extent never before heard of in the northwest.

The Northern Pacific Railroad Company have purchased a large scow from J. H. Montgomery to be used as a tugboat at the Kalama crossing. She will have an addition of forty-one feet in length built on to make her the same size as the large wharf boat which is to be used at the end of the crossing.

The four small scows used on the bridge work below the city will not be taken to Kalama, it being considered much preferable to have one large pontoon than four small ones.

John Gournier, who lives on the Sius law river, has been in Oregon since 1819. He came as an employee of the Hudson Bay company when only 18 years old, and is now 85 years of age. He has seen the large forest fires of 1846 burned all the timber along the coast from the Columbia down, many animals were consumed by the fiery elements, and thousands of bears, elk, panthers, deer, and other animals collected on the beach away from the fire as one forlorn but peaceful family. The old gentleman has never seen a railroad, and he has never heard of a locomotive.

The following is from the Oregon Mail: "It is calculated for all newspapers: 'If you know of any local event in your neighborhood of interest to the people—does any one move in or out; any one die; get married or run away; get kicked by a mule, bit by a dog or snake—in short, if anything out of the ordinary run takes place, and you have reason to believe that you know something about it as any one else, take a postal card and let us know about it. It takes a good deal to make a newspaper; and while you may think your item of trivial importance, a paper would be very dry reading indeed without just such items.'"

Says the Salem Vindicator: We have such intelligence as makes it certain that all this important railway, (the Oregon Pacific), to the people of central and upper Willamette valley, will be completed to Corvallis by the 15th of next October. There is a working force of 1,500 men now employed between Toledo and Corvallis on grades and bridges. The track will be laid and trains running from Yacoma City to tunnel No. 3, a distance of 24 miles, by the 1st of August. The elegant steamship Yaguana will bring the 4,000 tons of steel rails now at San Francisco, within the next few weeks, which, with the rails now at the bay is sufficient to build the road to Corvallis.

How's this for cheek, as given by the Seattle Post-Intelligencer: Ashley D. Harger, who claims to be a traveling correspondent of the Chicago Times, appeared before the board of censors and read from the manuscript what purported to be a letter prepared for publication in the Times, descriptive of Seattle and its surroundings. The letter was very flowery, highly complimentary, and in some instances greatly exaggerated the facts. When some of these overdrawn statements were pointed out to Mr. Harger, he boasted that he had prepared a similar letter for Tacoma, and that when our people saw that they would not consider the statements contained in the Seattle letter overdrawn. He said he was in the habit of receiving pay for these letters, and thought that the chamber should vote him $150 for this one. During discussion regarding the letter several members retired, until no quorum remained.

FRESH FASHION NOTES FOR THE LADIES.

Short fob chains are worn by ladies as well as gentlemen.
Ribbon belts, with many loops and a long bow, are much worn and add greatly to the toilet.

A gay parasol is part of the seaside toilet, and is preferred to the umbrella. A light taffeta silk rather than in the satins of last year.

White wings thrust into folds and bows and waves of poppy-red mull make the very pretty trimming of some Mackinaw blouse hats. White mull with bright flowers is also worn.

Small bishop sleeves appear in the full waisted frocks made for very young girls, and as these have sashes which are tied in large bows at the back they are exactly like those worn thirty years ago.

Tucked sleeves fitted very closely to the arm, the tucks are inch-and-a-half wide at the shoulder and decreasing in size as they reach the elbow, were seen recently upon a number of handsome dresses.

Everything odd and quaint is considered stylish this season. "Anne," says one of Miss Edgworth's heroines to her sister, "you can't be pretty, so you had better be odd," and in dress and now oddity is fully as much sought for as beauty.

There is a reaction this season in favor of shade bonnets. We have seen shade hats for so many years that we have forgotten that there ever was such thing as a shade bonnet, in which our grandmothers bewitched the gilded youth of their day.

Violet-wood fans, pleasantly fragrant, made with smooth sticks, on which ladies who draw well make outline sketches of their friends, sometimes slightly caricaturing them and the friends are expected to acknowledge the likeness by adding their autographs.

The latest mode of carrying watches is to have one end of a short chain, about five inches in length attached to the watch, and upon the other is suspended a handsome gold ball, in which precious stones are inlaid. An exceedingly pretty design was of dull gold, which had around it a band of turquoise.

A cruel being suggests that the white dresses made up over color are suggestive of pin-cushions, and really they do have a toilet table air, especially when the material beneath them is pink or blue; but the softened color is pretty, nevertheless, and the girls who have bought the frocks must not allow themselves to be discouraged from wearing them.

White stockings are coming in again. Doctors are beginning to discover that the sole of the foot absorbs dyes, whether black or colored, and that a continuous process of slow blood poisoning is now going on among those who wear colored stockings. They (the doctors, not the stockings) attribute to this several new diseases that have lately been added to the heritage of our human flesh.

Nans' gray ottoman silk is much used in the creation of handsome visiting toilets. One very elegant dress, designed and included in a superb wedding trousseau for a young lady, was made of a magnificent quality of this silk combined with imperial blue Lyons velvet. Another costume had this exquisitely tinted silk made up with panels, Louis XIV waistcoat, etc., of dark laurel green velvet.

Long undressed kid gloves retain favor, particularly for evening wear. Glazed kid gloves are very little worn except in black. They serve for full dress and for ordinary use, according to the quality of the kid. The only glazed gloves in use are of a heavy kind called "gantes beige." They are iron gray or dark yellow, and rather long, and are drawn under the sleeve. There are also sometimes in use gloves of a heavy kid embroidered on the outside, like men's gloves, but these are not as much liked as the undressed kid.

The fashionable traveling dress of the day is the tailor-made cloth suit, with dust cloak in Raglan or Fedora shape of mohair or cloth of light weight. Such a suit, made by a fashionable tailor, costs a small fortune, and is generally worn more. Women who cannot afford such style as this wear flannels or cloth of summer weight, such as sells for $1.25 per yard, made in tailor-style, close-fitting and generally simple in make. Linen dusters are altogether out of the fashion, and no woman with any pretensions to style would think of wearing one.

A charming girl wore at a recent party a very effective dress in white and gold; the dress of white mull was simply made, the skirt being devoid of trimming save for the plastron of openwork embroidery down the front, while the bodice was cut high at the throat and low at the waist was tied a large sash of old-gold sash, matching in tint the golden hair of the wearer; a ribbon of the same hue held a locket in place at the throat and a bit of the yellow sash gave a touch of light to the white, lace-trimmed hat, while a bunch of field daisies was worn at the belt or on the white parasol.

A charming wrapper of pongee is furnished with yards and yards of soft embroidery and bows of pale blue, pink and ponce-colored satin ribbon. The back falls in a full Watteau plait, set in at the yoke under embroidery ruffles, and is cut in a long rounded train, bordered by a foot plaiting of the same with two ruffles of embroidery above it. The front is gathered from the throat down, drawn narrow at the waist, and from there gradually widening to the low edge. This gathered center is bordered down either side by cascades of embroidery with a dainty knot of ribbon in the three colors tucked under every other fold. The sleeves are made loose, falling just below the elbow, and finished by deep ruffles caught up at the inside seams with bows.

Tucks and plaitings have by no means abdicated their lengthy reign, but, on the contrary, have this season multiplied indefinitely. Dusters of tiny tucks are seen upon the flounces of dresses of every description, from the simplest muslin to the heaviest Lyons silk, and the latest device in muslin flouncing and cashmere is to have no apron drape, tunic or panier at the front and sides of the skirt, but to arrange these breadths in a series of plait, extending in mathematical array from belt to hem. There is a bouffant effect at the back, and at the left side of the front is tied a full bow and ends of rather wide ribbon to take away the look of plainness which the simple kiting gives.
